Rita Dove wants more people to give reading a chance. She believes that once someone reads a good book for pleasure, they will want to read other books and will eventually become a bibliophile. This same idea holds true for anything new or intimidating-- if you just start whatever it is that you are hesitant to do then you will find that it is not as bad as you initially perceived it to be.

Dig in; You'll never reach the bottom" (Rita Dove). She is also making the point that once you are lost in a good book it will make you want to continue reading others and you will never run out of books to read, there is no bottom. I liked this poem because it goes to show that a short poem such as this one can have so much meaning.
